——— One of a former Session referred to a Committee of the whole House, 3 July.

Address of Thanks for His Majesty's Speech from the Throne, and congratulating His Majesty on the signal Success which has attended His Majesty's Arms, and particularly on the decisive Action, in which a Detachment of His Fleet, under the Command of Lord Nelson, attacked, and almost totally destroyed a superior Force of the Enemy, strengthened by every Advantage of Situation: To express the Exultation with which the House observes, that by this brilliant Victory, an Enterprize, which was peculiarly directed against some of the most valuable Interests of the British Empire, has, in the first Instance, been turned to the Confusion of its Authors, and the earnest Hope that the Blow thus given to the Power and Influence of France, the laudable Example held out by the Emperor of Russia, and the Ottoman Porte, and the Disposition manifested in the different Countries struggling under the Yoke of France, may encourage other Powers to adopt that vigorous Line of Conduct, which Experience has shewn to be alone consistent with the Security and Honour of independent States, and which, if generally adopted, may lead to the Deliverance of Europe: That the House is sensible of the peculiar Advantages derived to this Kingdom, from the Extent of the Preparations at Home, and from the general Demonstrations of Zeal and Spirit among all Ranks of His Majesty's Subjects; and the House has seen, with great Satisfaction, the Effect of the Measures adopted in Ireland, for repressing a Rebellion instigated by an inveterate Enemy, the Surrender of the French Troops landed for its Support, and the successful Vigilance and Activity of His Majesty's Squadrons, in capturing or dispersing the Armaments since destined for the same Purpose: To testify to His Majesty the Indignation with which the House have observed the desperate Principles of those who have planned the Subversion of the Constitution, which have now been fully detected, and made manifest to the World; and the firm Persuasion that those who have been misled or seduced, must now be awakened to their Duty, and that a just Sense of the Miseries and Horrors, which these traitorous Designs have produced, must impress on the Minds of His Majesty's faithful Subjects the Necessity of continuing to repel, with Firmness, every Attack on the Laws and Established Government of their Country: That the House will diligently apply to the Consideration of such Measures as may provide the necessary Supplies with as little Inconvenience to His People as the Circumstances will admit, that, under the unavoidable Pressure of protracted War, while the House joins with His Majesty in regretting the indispensable Necessity of heavy Expences, they will derive the greatest Satisfaction and Confidence from the productive State of the Revenue, the Improvement of Public Credit, and the Extent and Prosperity of the Commerce and Industry of His Subjects: To renew to His Majesty the solemn Assurances of the Determination of the House to persevere in those Exertions, which may enable His Majesty to conduct the great Contest to a safe and honourable Conclusion, and uniformly to maintain those Principles, an Adherence to which, in a Period of general Danger and Calamity, has procured the Advantages of the present Situation, and which will continue to prove, that the Security and Happiness of the British Nation find the surest Support in its own Constancy, its Energy, and its Virtue; Resolved on; 20 Nov. Committee appointed to prepare Address; to withdraw immediately; King's Speech referred; ibid. Address reported, and agreed to; to be presented by the whole House; 21 Nov. King's Answer, 23.

——— for a Monument to be erected in Saint Paul's, to the Memory of Captain George Blagdon Westcott, of His Majesty's Ship Majestic, who fell gloriously in the Naval Engagement on the 1st of August last, when a decisive Victory was obtained by Lord Nelson over the French Fleet, off the Mouth of the Nile; Resolved on *Nem.
